McKecks owners hope donations continue for youth hub

JENN WATT
County Life Editor

Aaron Walker wants to see the community turn its focus to funding the new Haliburton Youth Wellness Hub, which is undergoing renovations in the former Lighthouse church on Dysart Avenue in Haliburton.

The space is much-needed by youth and Walker, who owns McKecks Tap and Grill with his wife Melissa Walker, said he'd like to see people helping out where they can.

A concert by The Emburys at McKecks in November raised $250 for the youth hub, which the restaurant matched to donate $500.

"It's exciting to have in this community," Walker said at a cheque presentation at the new space on Dec. 5.

"In a conversation that I had with Marg Cox [executive director of Point in Time, which is a lead on the project] a couple of months ago, I learned about the youth hub and that it would be in need of funding as things progress so I thought that it would be great to leverage events at McKecks to support this just as historically we have supported minor hockey and youth in the community," he said in a press release.

Although funding has come in from the province as well as through Haliburton County Development Corporation to pay for the operation and staffing, money is still needed to renovate the space.

Cox said members of the public can visit pointintime.ca/gift-registry to give to the project. Money will go to whatever is the most pressing need at the moment.

Those working on the youth hub are grieving the death of Peter Fearrey, who was managing the renovation and doing the hands-on work at the space. Fearrey had recently retired from HHHS and was a key member of the team.

McKecks owners Aaron and Melissa Walker visited the new Haliburton Youth Wellness Hub on Wednesday, Dec. 5 to deliver a $500 donation gathered during The Emburys concert at the restaurant in November. The concert raised $250, which was matched by McKecks. Landscapes of the North reveals artist's passion for Canadian nature

LAURIE CARMOUNT
Special to County Life

Currently featured at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery is an art exhibit of bold, colourful, acrylic paintings by artist Jennifer Churchill. Landscapes of the North: A Contemporary Vision, will be running until Dec. 22.

Churchill's paintings primarily depict trees, lakes and a small cabin. The frequent images of the cabins is explained in Churchill's artist statement, where she states that she has always wanted to "live in a small country cabin, close to water and under a tall canopy of trees."

Living in Etobicoke, painting these types of landscapes helps her feel part of the North. In her artist statement she further explains, "I feel a powerful pull to travel regularly up north to spend time in nature whether it is by the water, in the forest, or under an open sky, this time spent in nature gives me the sense of freedom that I seek and restores balance to my life."

Churchill's strong passion for nature is expressed through her paintings with bold, bright colours. The style she uses is reflective of one that began in France in 1888, known as cloisonnism. This term – coined by critic Edouard Dujardin – was made referring to artists Émile Bernard and Paul Gauguin. The name evokes the technique of cloisonné, or compartments of coloured glass separated by wire such as stained glass in churches.

This strong two-dimensional appearance was conceived as a response to the Impressionists' preoccupation with the study and depiction of light. Concern was not about being realistic, but about creating a more artistic idea of the subject, lending itself to a unique form of modern art.

There have been many artists from that time forward who have gravitated to this style. It appeals to a very stylized graphic design. Some view this, however, as too simplistic and say it's simply illustration. The Group of Seven implemented qualities of the style in their work and were originally criticized for it. Despite appearing seemingly simplistic, this particular style presents a whole new set of challenges. To break down what you see into clearly defined shapes that gradually make a pattern – using only a sense of the image – takes considerable creativity. This complex simplicity is part of the appeal. As artist Emile Bernard explained; art was meant to be decorative, not interpretive. A good example of this by Churchill is the painting titled Dancing, Summer Forest.

At the opening reception on Nov. 9, Churchill was asked what artists were her favourite. She of course mentioned Tom Thomson and Lawren Harris. Yet, she also remarked on being influenced by Markey Robertson, and her painting called Quebec Cabin from the River in Spring is an example of her admiration for Clarence Gagnon.

Churchill has an eclectic educational background in kinesiology and physiotherapy, as well as art classes at Toronto School of Art. When asked if there was a connection between science and art, she said creating the shapes and contours in paintings is much like understanding the forms of the human anatomy.

When asked to describe how her work is developing, she simply responded by pointing to one piece of art that stands out from the rest. Instead of black outlines with solid shapes, she uses layering of muted colours in a minimalist style to convey a lake scene. Churchill explains that she works in three different styles; when she begins a piece, she often refers to photos but her continuation of sketching and painting causes the work to slowly evolve into something different.

Landscapes of the North: A Contemporary Vision is inspiring, not only for the beauty of the artwork but because it is refreshing to see an artist's love and passion for the Canadian nature – particularly for landscape so much like our Haliburton County.

The Agnes Jamieson Gallery is located at 176 Bobcaygeon Road in the town of Minden. The gallery is open Tuesday to Saturday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Laurie Carmount is curator of the Agnes Jamieson Gallery.

Artist Jennifer Churchill paints landscapes to make her feel closer to the North. Based in Etobicoke, she says she feels a powerful pull to travel regularly up north to spend time in nature. She uses bold, bright colours in a style known as cloisonnism, which is similar to some aspects of the stained glass aesthetic. Her work is on display at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery in Minden until Dec. 22. /Photo submitted

Health unit supports income-based solutions to poverty

In the spirit of the season, local residents are being asked to buy into something that isn't available at any store or online retailer.

Instead, the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit wants people to take a stand against poverty in Haliburton County.

Locally, approximately 25 per cent of local children live in poverty. A recent study also found the "living wage" in Haliburton County is $19.42 per hour – what a family of four with both parents working full-time would need to earn to cover basic expenses in 2018. This amount is more than $5 higher than Ontario's current minimum wage.

"While donating time and money to local charities are great ways to help in the short term, supporting solutions that get to the root causes of poverty can make an even bigger difference over the long haul," says Mary Lou Mills, a social determinants of health nurse with the HKPR District Health Unit.

In creating a holiday wish list this year, she encourages people to think of – and act on – ways they can help keep poverty under wraps. One of the most obvious is to be kind and non-judgmental towards low-income earners.

"Being poor isn't a choice," Mills says. "There are many reasons why people live in poverty, much of it beyond their own control." An inability to get reliable, secure work, access affordable housing options, buy healthy food, or find affordable child care all play havoc on a person's ability to make ends meet.

"All of these factors contribute to poverty, which in turn can hurt people's health," she adds. Income-based solutions are essential to successfully address poverty. According to Mills, this is where residents can show they care by:

- Getting behind increased social assistance rates.
- Calling for people to be paid living wages.
- Supporting basic employment standards to reduce unstable work.
- Saying yes to building more affordable housing units.

"Raise awareness and lobby for change by talking to your family, friends, neighbours and elected officials about the importance of these income-based solutions," she says. "These are all gifts that will benefit our entire community."

For example, the local economy is boosted when everyone has stable jobs that pay living wages. Communities are healthier when everyone has a safe and affordable place to live, can afford nutritious food, and is able to participate in recreational activities. Local families will also face less stress, while children can grow, thrive and succeed in school.

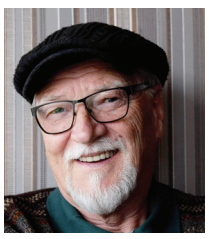
Alternative education can come with music

ALL CULTURE is based on some form of education, and a formal education is a significant part of moulding us as individuals.

Getting a Grade 12 diploma is now more important than ever before.

Nowadays, with the combination of health and safety regulations tied to insurance demands, it's required that all workers be able to understand and execute health and safety guidelines in the workplace. And a Grade 12 education is the standard used to ensure that understanding.



GEORGE FARRELL
On Arts/Culture

For most students, attendance at high school is not an issue, but for reasons such as medical, mental health, injury, and social anxiety, there are a significant number of students who do not regularly attend classes, but who are still seeking the all-important diploma.

There are also mature people who find themselves needing to get their Grade 12 in order to meet the new demands of their workplace; people like hydro workers, for instance, who require Grade 12 math.

So what do you do if you didn't complete Grade 12 but you need that diploma? The answer is to get in touch with the Adult and Alternative Education Centre, run by the Trillium Lakelands District School Board.

I was vaguely aware of the AAEC, but until recently, when I paid a visit to Greg Shantz, a teacher there, I had no idea about the courses offered.

"Some people leave school in grades 10 or 11 and they think that they need another one or two years to complete their diploma," Shantz said. "You need a total of 30 credits to graduate high school. However for some people who have been out of school for a minimum of one year all they have to do to get their diploma is complete Grade 11 math and Grade 12 English, plus two additional credits. Just four credits in total. We like to say that for adults especially, graduation is closer than you think."

"We do all the compulsory high school courses here," Shantz said, "and they are the same courses that are found in curriculums in any high school in Ontario."

At this point in our conversation Shantz introduced me to Lori Sargent, who is the AAEC administrative head.

"Sixteen per cent of people don't have their high school diplomas," Sargent said. "So, a student who has had surgery for example, could come here and do one credit at a time. That's why we're called alternative. We can offer an alternate timetable. And although we focus on Grade 11 and 12 students, who we want to transition back into high school, we're seeing needs in a wide variety of people; from 14 to 40 and beyond."

The AAEC offers a wide variety of courses including night school, summer courses, online courses, maturity credits, literacy basic skills, day school, co-operative education, PLAR (prior learning assessment and recognition) credits, dual credit, the Ontario Youth Apprenticeship program and a personal support worker course.

"There are so many ways of graduating nowadays that are different from what they were 10 years ago," Sargent said. "There are a total of 60 to 80 students here at any one time, spread throughout our three classrooms, and we graduate 20 to 30 students on average, each year."

AAEC is strongly supported by many community organizations and businesses. I must admit I was impressed, and it took me back to my own high school days when, as a mature student, I had to get my Grade 12 equivalency at the Provincial Institute of Trades in Toronto. But that institute didn't have a music option like they do at AAEC.

In one of the classrooms I was amazed to see an array of instruments and recording equipment. This was the domain of Shantz who teaches math and music.

"We have electric guitars, drums, bass and keyboards," Shantz said. "All we need for a band. It's a credited course. I teach seven or eight students at any one time. Various bands have played at the Haliburton Youth Wellness Hub, at a brunch for Point in Time, and at a regular monthly gig we had at McKecks. We play rock, blues, reggae and indie music. I teach them the basics and use a song that they want to learn to teach them how to play the instrument. We use the internet to get lyrics and chords, and we also find online tutorials. We have a complete recording studio and we can record students' covers and original songs, some of which have been played on Canoe FM and the Moose FM. Some students go on to other bands, but our goal is to have students reflect on their own learning, be part of a group learning situation, and feel good about themselves."

I feel good just knowing that AAEC exists in our community. For more information go online to www.anewstart.ca or call 705-457-3745. The Adult and Alternative Education Centre is located at 1018 Grass Lake Road in Haliburton.

Seasons

(On loving north four ways)

The seasons change four times a year
And lucky us that they're so clear
And marked with names the north can own
So different from a southern zone
Where subtler shifts still play four times
And temp discreetly falls or climbs
The climate there sits mostly mild
Its winds are rarely mad and wild
The colours south stay bright and green
But north it's contrast that's the queen
Of painters, skiers, those who tent
In great outdoors where joy is spent
In changes, chills, full moons and drifts -
I prefer when season shifts
And brown comes in, and white or gold
The mud, the snow, the larch when bold
A slurry sky, not constant blue
Where northern hawks can cut right through
The currents rising from the cliffs
White pine and lichen-scented whiffs
From cedar crones and granite faces
Air swims up in different places
Gracing whitetails,
white-throats, foxes
People too, those paradoxes
Who complain that winter's harsh
Yet spot the beauty when a marsh
Is black reflection, frozen reeds
Bravely holding next year's seeds
Till spring seduces ice and air
And birdsong's once again the prayer
Which launches north to split in four
Our seasons and their new encore
Folk grateful will four blessings count
And know it's just the right amount

Italian dinner pays off for food bank

On Nov. 10, Chef Roberto and Chef Frederico, also known as Bob Phillips and Fred Chapple, and a team of dedicated helpers from the Highland Hills United Church transformed the Christian Education Hall at Zion United Church into an Italian eatery for a wonderful candle lit evening filled with romance and of course spaghetti! Although attendance was lower than hoped due to the wintery weather conditions, a profit of $538 was gratefully received by the Minden Food Bank soon after. Many thanks to all those involved for making this dinner a success. From left, Paul Rutledge, Norma Phillips, Bob Phillips, Don Veno and Marilynne Lesperance. /Submitted

Women get shopping in Haliburton

JENN WATT
County Life Editor

Eighteen downtown businesses stayed open late on Thursday, Dec. 6 for the BIA's Women's Shopping Night.

The street was bustling with shoppers, who hurried to visit as many stores as possible between 5 and 7 p.m.

For their part, store owners offered delicious treats, prizes, discounts and deals. Staff were dressed up too. One woman wore candy-cane design glasses. Another was dressed as an elf.

A group of carollers belted out Christmas songs as they wandered down Highland Street just before 6 p.m., stopping at V&S to entertain the line of shoppers at the cash registers.

BIA administrator Cindy Campbell sent an email to member businesses, which called the shopping night an "amazing evening." She said there were 156 ballots cast for five $100 Foodland gift cards. To enter a ballot, the shopper had to attend several of the downtown businesses for a stamp on their shopping passport.

Volunteers from Bank of Montreal stood out in the cold at the Village Barn handing out hot chocolate and candy canes. They had a propane warming unit to help shoppers get warm.

Comfortable winter entertaining ideas

Getting together with friends and family is still possible even if the weather outside is frightful. When Mother Nature takes a chilly turn, those who don't want the party can consider the following entertaining ideas.

• Indulge in sweet treats. Comfort foods can make even the most blustery winds easier to tolerate. Invite people over for a dessert party. At a dessert pot luck party, everyone brings along a favourite decadent dessert, from molten lava chocolate cake to warm bread pudding. Serve alongside tea, coffee and hot chocolate. Adults can enjoy the added punch of spiked beverages, which can warm everyone up instantly.

• Host a "snowed in" party. Spending a day cooped up inside when the roads are covered in snow might not be your idea of fun, but invite a mix of friends and neighbours who live nearby over, and this impromptu party can make the cabin fever disappear. Ask guests to bring one food item or beverage. Light a fire in the fireplace and set out some cozy throw blankets. If possible, invite everyone outdoors to build a snowman.

• Get physical. Get physically active with friends or family members by staging mock Olympic events in the yard. These can be fun "sports" created by participants or variations on fun winter activities. Sledding races, snowball dodging contests, ice skating obstacle courses, and much more can make for an entertaining afternoon.

• Get cooking. Cooking can certainly pass the time, and it can be even more enjoyable when done in the company of others. Send out an invitation for friends to stop by for a meal or plan a meal prep party.

• Host a movie marathon. Handpick some favourite films and invite everyone over for a movie marathon. Fill the family room, home theatre room or living room to capacity and host a group for a film fest. If space permits, set up one room with a children's movie for youngsters, while the adults retire to another room for movies that are more their speed. A buffet table set up with assorted snacks will help keep bellies full while guests watch some favourite flicks.

Winter days and nights are ripe for entertaining possibilities. These events help squash the cabin fever that can sometimes develop during the colder times of year.

In the spirit of Christmas

Haliburton Lions Club members Christine Horton, Chris Nicholls, Bruce James, president Doug King Ron Barr, were joined by Four C's representatives Bob Thompson, and Walter Leveck pose when the Lions Angel Tree was unveiled in the Stedmans mall in Haliburton. The Lions are asking that people take a card from the tree, and purchase a gift for a child aged 11-16. The gifts will be given to families in need this Christmas. The collection continues until December 17 — more details are available next to the display.

'No': two 24 hr. emergency depts.

Health study confirms previous observations

by Andrew Milne

A long awaited study into the state of the Haliburton county and ares's health care system finally saw the light of day last week.

Among other things, the study recommends that in-patient acute care be concentrated in Haliburton village, and that Minden's hospital be relocated to the Hyland Crest site. It also suggests that, for the immediate future at least, the board running local emergency services should favour operating Minden's hospital at less than 24 hours, and concentrate on building a system which nonetheless provides solid emergency care, through creative use of paramedics and nurse practitioners, in a more coordinated system.

The Acting Health Service Board's (AHSB) Acute Care Role Study, commissioned to determine what shape emergency health care services would take in the years to come was released November 3.

The study was expected, among other things, to help resolve the issue of what services should be offered at which sites in the county. Division of services, particularly between the villages of Minden and Haliburton, has traditionally been politically complex.

Among other things, the study concludes:

- that current usage rates at the Haliburton and Minden hospitals do not justify continuing to operate both facilities on a 24 hour basis, and that this is unlikely to be affordable for the board even in the longer term
- that the geographical size of the region, coupled with the sparse population and shrinking health care funding calls for some innovation in the delivery of services — potentially utilizing paramedics and nurse practitioners as more affordable and effective options, within a more closely coordinated system
- that hospital use in general be reduced, by increased use of primary care, observation, in-home services, and social services, where appropriate
- that the Minden hospital should be relocated to the Hyland Crest long term care

Seasonal celebrations start this weekend in Minden and Haliburton

The Christmas season gets off to a start in both Minden and Haliburton this coming weekend.

In Minden, the annual Moonlight Madness shopping promotion takes place Friday evening. (See flyer with this newspaper for more details.) The sale, which is scheduled to get underway at 7 p.m., will be kicked off by a Minden BIA sponsored Christmas in the Village celebration. Among the events planned is the lighting of a giant Christmas tree on the village green, (next to the CIBC).

In conjunction with the lighting ceremonies, a choir will be on hand to lead the crowd in traditional Christmas carols. Horse drawn wagon rides will be available free of charge and we understand that Santa Claus may even make an appearance.

Hot chocolate will be available for all participants. The public is encouraged to bring homemade decorations to hang on the tree.

The lighting of the tree is scheduled for 7 p.m., but festivities will start at 6:45 p.m. with carol singing and tree decorating.

In conjunction with the special day, Minden CHACE Place will have parent volunteers at the drop-in centre to look after youngsters between 3 and 7 p.m. CHACE is located behind the Sears order office on Main Street North. For more information, contact Val at 286-1770.

In Haliburton, Santa Claus makes his official entry into town Saturday afternoon (November 25).

Organized jointly by the Haliburton BIA and the community's Lions Club (with a special effort this year from Bill Hartin), the parade starts at 1:30 p.m. from the Haliburton United Church. The parade will travel west on Highland Street to York Street. Over 30 floats have already registered. There is still time for anyone interested in taking part. For more information call Anne at 457-1413.

Following the parade, Santa will be available for photographs, courtesy of Haliburton Perfect Prints, at the Surveyor's House, between Varty's Jewellery and the Butcher Block and Deli.

Minden's Santa Claus Parade is scheduled for December 2 at 1 p.m.

What's in a name?

The search is on for a new name for the Haliburton and Area Acting Health Services Board.

It was admitted at the board's meeting Wednesday evening that the group's current name lacks clarity, identity and perhaps is just a little too long for most people to get their mouths or minds around. So, as the board moves toward incorporation, its chairman Paul Heffer has suggested that the organization should take the opportunity to acquire a new name. The members of the board have been asked to provide suggestions and the invitation was extended to the public as well.

In the near future, it is expected, the board will be responsible for the management of the two hospitals in the county. However, as outlined by the Ministry of Health, its mandate could also extend beyond acute care service and may encompass control over and management of Hyland Crest, the delivery of in-home health services and the integration of health-related services throughout the service area which includes Haliburton County and the northern portions of Peterborough and Victoria counties.

Suggestions for the organization's name can be sent to the Acting Health Services Board, Box 569, Minden, Ontario, K0M 2K0 or faxed to 286-4819. The names will be considered at the December meeting of the board.

Legacy.

From humble beginnings in 1953, we have grown to become a recognized insurance brokerage in the Highlands. When my grandfather, Floyd Hall, started the brokerage he focused on building relationships. That remains our objective to this day. Our clients typically know us by name, call us directly or personally visit our office to discuss their needs. We thank them for the trust they place in us. For those who don't know us, we welcome your inquiry.
